Boys Tell Of Treasure Trove

Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

"Where moth and rust do not corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal." The old phrase from the Bible with relation to laying up worldly treasures recurs to the mind, in the light of the past week's events. Spiritual treasures in books, in paintings, in music, in benevolences, one may lay up for the blessing of the present and of future generations. Nowadays if nothing else separates a man from his treasure, the tax gatherer, who comes yearly and quarterly and in some cases monthly will take at least $35 out of every $100 of average income. Employees of the people will absorb a goodly portion of and the rest will go into various activities of local, state and Federal government.

We have often poked fun at the old Chinese system of tax squeezing, but dimly we seem to discern an Occidental adaption of the system to the American field. Pressure groups do the squeezing. Congress is squeezed, threatened, cajoled and bull dozed. The upper millstone is the Administration determined to put an economic program into effect, willy nilly. The lower millstone, is not one, but many minority groups which demand vast expenditures for special purposes in particular regions, which all the people must pay for. That region which has the most enterprising congressman will receive larger largess from the public purse than another region with a less able legislator in the national congress. Raiding the national treasury has become an industry, attended by the Arts and Sciences. In effect the upper millstone says to the lower millstone. "Grant me my program and Ill grant you your Central Valley project, your canal across Florida, Passamaquoddie tidal electrical generator," the Grand Coulee dam and a little billion here and a little billion there.

In dry years when the honey flow is slight from wild flowers in the mountains of Southern California, an apiarist must provide sugar syrup for his colonies of bees. The syrup must be sufficiently abundant to maintain the bees in health. Or else —the bees, one colony from another, will begin robbing. The robbers rush the sentinels stationed at the entrance of each hive and boil in among the combs, sting the defending bees to death, and load up hastily with their neighbors honey, stored in the comb shells and away to their own hives. In a few days, an apiary consisting of hundreds of colonies is reduced to only a few strong colonies which have conquered and killed the many week colonies.

Viewing the world at large the human race in times of stress reacts with startling similarity to bees. These pressure groups, both above and below the Congress, forcing that body to borrow more, impose more taxes for ever increasing expenditures, are groups of the American people really warring against each other, rapidly impoverishing each other. The bees of course, being utterly ruthless, sting their starving and destitute neighbors to death. We continue to sustain those whom we injure. The old Chinese system, which under Chiang Kai-shek has been largely abolished, enormously enriched invidividuals, one in a million perhaps. Under the American system the squeeze produces no wealth for anyone, but eventual poverty for everyone. Money that once went into productive processes, either directly or through the purchase of bonds or stocks, now goes into taxes. The government undertakes in a cumbersome, awkward and wasteful way to find employment for the idle, where once capital eagerly seeking employment gave millions of men employment .In other words much of the money that formerly flowed into industrial investment now flows into governmental treasuries to support a vast army of bureau factotums and non-producers.

Most of the world's honey (money) is today gathered in three national hives. It is accumulated in England, France and the United States. In fact, half of the world's gold supply is in the United States. Some of it is buried in Kentucky, and tons of silver is now being buried at West Point. Three fourths of of the world's metal money is in the three countries named. As a medium of exchange it is not functioning except slightly. These vast accumulations are serving no good purpose here or abroad and the robber bees are looking hungrily into the hives of other nations. In the case of Austria, it is known that Germany plundered the national treasury, and where able to do so, practically repudiated Austria's debts. Italy angrily seeks a higher plane of living for its people through conquest. Poverty stricken Japan marches into the hive of China. And here in the United States, great groups industriously rob each other and paternal government benignly picks all of our pockets.

Merchants Feature Special Values For Watchful Shoppers

, Nevada City and Grass Valley business firms today open a trade expansion campaign which will be continued over ten weeks or more. This kind of an advertising campaign has proven fruitful of results in many other California cities. Nevada County residents will find in the Trade Expansion Page in this, the 2nd official publication on Page 5, special values. These special values, opportunities and bargains which are offered will change every week, and will be continued through out the campaign. It is a page specially worth watching by all careful housewives and family buyers.

At least fifteen dollars is offered on this page weekly in special discounts and gifts. Readers of the Nugget are advised to watch and read the advertisements on the Trade Expansion Page each Monday evening when it appears to see whether their name is among those "hidden" in one or more of the advertisements. If it is not found this Monday, look for it next Monday. It is money in the purse to find one's name on that page. All told a total of nearly 300 "hidden" names of Grass Valley and Nevada City residents will appear on the Trade Expansion page during the campaign.

This campaign is being conducted not only to stimulate business during summer months, when business in many lines is a bit dull, but also to build up the twin-city community by keeping Nevada County money at home and at work.

Prosperous business conditions in Nevada City and Grass Valley always are reflected in increased employment, and increased business in merchandising always spreads through the entire community.

Look for your name today on Page 5, the Nevada City Nugget's Trade Expansion campaign.

COLUMBIA PARK BOYS GRATEFUL TO THE SHERIFF

The following letter has been received from Andrew Piercy, director of the Columbia Park Boys' Club, which has just concluded its annual encampment at Lake Olympia:

Editor, Nevada City Nugget,
Nevada City, Calif.

Gentlemen:

After being in camp here on the shores of beautiful Lake Olympia for one month, we break camp on the morrow and start back for San Francisco. We have had a most happy and successful encampment with more than one-hundred-fifty boys from the bay region living out here in California's most beautiful country. Our camp, located as it is among the beautiful pines bordering on Lake Olympia, has offered so many advantages that most city boys are deprived of having unless they are as fortunate as we have been to reap the benefits of such an outing.

We wish also to take this means of thanking Sheriff Tobiassen for the splendid co-operattion we have always received at his hands. He has been a friend of the Columbia Park Boys Camp for many years past, and this year was no exception. Besides a great water melon feast, he also let us have the use of a fine big school bus, which enabled us to transport most of our camp to Lake Tahoe and the surrounding country. This also made it possible to carry the boys to and from their church services each Sunday morning.

We wish to thank the members of the Lions club of Grass Valley, who played host to our boys on many occasions, as well as transporting our entire camp to and from Colfax. They also provided a fine ice cream feed last night at the close of our camp, nd it registered in a big way for the boys.

To all the citizens of Nevada County who have been very nice to the boys, we want to take this means of saying "Thanks to you all" and look forward for our return next year to be a part of your thriving community.

We feel grateful to the Nevada City Nugget for the publicity we received on the various occasions.

Very truly yours.
ANDREW PIERCY, Director.

BOY DEFENDING GIRL'S HONOR IS DEAD OF WOUNDS

George McElroy, 20 year old Placer county junior college football star who was shot for what was termed "defending the honor of his sister in law" in Roseville Saturday night, died Sunday in a Sacramento hospital.

Young McElroy was registered at the college from Nevada City. He attended the Nevada City high school in his senior year, coming here from Cleveland, Ohio, where he was all-city half back. He was the son of Joseph McElroy of Cleveland, Ohio.

The popular quarter back's young wife, Ruth to whom he was secretly wed, saw her husband fall to the sidewalk, a bulet in his chest. Their marriage, a campus romance was not generally known until revealed after his death.

Sheriff's deputies and police of the entire Mother Lode country are searching for Everett Gilbert Parman, 25, said to be an ex-convict, as the man who fired the fatal shot.

The shooting took place late last night on one of the busiest intersections in down town Roseville McElroy had trailed Parman to the corner after Margaret Brusso, his wife's sister, had told him of an attack upon her, police were informed.

Several witnesses to the gunplay named Parman as the assailant. Sheriff Elmer Gum immediately put out an all point teletype for him. Officers were watching bus and railroad depots.

This was the police account of the events preceding the shooting:

Parman was driving Margaret Brusso home from nearby Auburn when he is said to have attacked her. Miss Brusso is employed at the county courthouse at Auburn. She had missed the last bus and friends asked Parman to drive the girl to Roseville.

On arriving home Miss Brusso told McElroy and her sister of the asserted attack.

The young athlete was enraged. With his wife, he found Parman. "They had a few words. Then Parman pulled a gun from beneath his sweater and shot George," the young widow told police.

McElroy was taken to the Mercy Hospital in Sacramento, where he died Sunday morning at about 9:30 o'clock. A number of witnesses to the shooting asid they were sure it was Parman who fired the gun.

Miss Betty Held who has spent the past week visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Develey, Jr., in Auburn stopped over in Nevada City Saturday enroute to Alleghany where she will join members of her family who are on vacation there.

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT, WHEN CAR SKIDS HITS TREE

Three of four Grass Valley young men received critical injuries, one proving fatal, in an auto accident one mile south of Lake Vera north of Nevada City at 1:30 Sunday morning.

Benjamine Dorsey, 19 years of age, died in Landis Clinic in Grass Valley early Sunday forenoon six hours after the accident in which Francis Proffit, 17, received a fractured skull; Russell Speed, 22, a broken neck. William Dunn driver of the car and Forrest Fluty another passenger received cuts, scratches and bruises.

The group of young men were attending a party near the lake and Fluty complained of a sudden attack of appendicitis. The boys took him to Grass Valley and when he reached there he stated he felt better and they returned to the party.

Highway Patrolman Lorris Richards went to the scene of the accident and stated he found the car had skidded 93 feet in soft earth on a shoulder and had crashed into a tree, a portion of the way the car had jumped 25 feet. The tre was hit nine feet from the ground. The evidence would indicate that the car was traveling at a high rate of speed although Dunn and Fluty stated they were traveling between 35 and 40 miles per hour.

Benjamin Dorsey, an automobile mechanic of Hills Flat, was born February 19, 1919 in Jarniel, Montana. He is survived by his parnts Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Dorsey of Grass Valley, three brothers, Clyde, Allen and Mitchell, and one sister, Madeline Morgan of Phoenix, Arizona.

Frank Proffit, 17 years of age, remains in quite a serious condition in Landis Clinic in Grass Valley this afternoon. He suffered a fractured skull. Russell Speed, 22, years, who suffers a broken neck in the early Sunday morning accident is showing improvement.

The funeral will be held Thursday morning at the Holmes Hooper Funeral Home in Grass Valley.

SUPERVISORSMAY ISSUE BOOKLET ON. NEV. COUNTY

The county supervisors this afternoon considered the need of issuing a new and more adequate booklet for advertising Nevada County. Jas. Tyrrell of Grass Valley introduced the subject by calling attention to the fact that there will be a large demand for something informative about Nevada County at the Golden Gate Exposition next year. He stated that people come from far and near to view the home of Lola Montez in Grass Valley, to see the monument erected to commemorate the discovery of gold quartz, and that others come to Nevada City to see the beautiful new and modern court house. At present, Mr. Tyrrell said, there is very little information concerning the county in handy, printed form available. Though the board of supervisors from time to time in the past, have issued pamphlets and folders the supply is practically now exhausted.

The Nevada City Nugget and the Morning Union submitted estimates of the cost of such a booklet. The supervisors took the matter under advisement.

JOE O'NEILL LEAVES SANITARIUM

Joe O'Neill, janitor of the Nevada City elementary school who has been a critically ill patient at the Nevada City sanitarium since the latter part of May was taken to his home yesterday. Though he is well on the way to recovery he will be confined to his bed for some time. Joe is a great favorite with both the youug folks and their elders in Nevada City and they all will be hapyy to learn of his improvement.

Young Kistle and Pal Relate Jail Experience

Wearing brocaded silk shirts, such as the color loving cowboys buy in Reno shops, Ernest Kistle and Raymond Yarborough of this city, are giving Nevada City a wide berth pending the result of their adventures with Jim Kistle's stocks and gold treasure, as related in Friday's issue of the Nevada City Nugget.

Depositions made last Thursday before John Bongard, state investigator, it is assumed, are now in the hands of Federal authorities. Owing to the fact that practically all of the secret service men in California have been busy guarding President Roosevelt during his tour of this state during the past week, Federal investigation has been delayed, it is reported.

Ernest Kistle, who was 17 years old Friday, and Raymond Yarborough, 20, in their affidavit, which follows seem to have a deep seated fear, not of any legal penalties which may accrue from their frankly acknowledged theft of Jim Kistle's gold and securities, but of his wrath, should he, by any chance catch up with them following their candid recital of adventures with his treasure trove.

It has been learned that so far as the two youths know, the heavy steel box with the asbestos lining, which boys removed from a hole in the ground under the floor of the barn on the Kistle place, is now under the muddy high water of the South Yuba. The box constitutes a kind of corpus delicti, and probably in due time will be recovered and used as exhibit Z. The silk shirts, black for Raymond Yarborough, and a ultramarine blue for Kistle may be exhibit A and in between may be sundry empty peanut butter jars, an empty coffee can, and gold buyer's certificates scattered from Oakland to Reno.

As far as the confession of the boys is concerned, naively and unmorally told, it is like an aerial bomb; it scatters shrapnel nonchalantly and impersonally in a wide radius from Nevada City, though the boys do not relate that any gold selling was done here. The deposition given below, differs from that given to John Bongard, state investigator, only in form and in the fact that certain names mentioned by the boys are herein omitted in the interest of justice. It follows:

AFFIDAVIT OF ERNEST KISTLE, 17, AND RAYMOND YARBOROUGH, 20, ON EVENTS FROM JUNE 15TH TO JULY 14, 1938.

It was on the 13th of June I saw Jim Kistle and my father taking some jars from the house to the barn. I was in the house. I decided I wanted to see what it was. I thought it was high-grade gold. I went to the barn to hunt for it and I found it under some boards in the driveway. It was in a box, a fireproof box. I covered it up again but left the boards loose. I went to the swimming jool and I saw Ray there. I told Ray the old man had some high-grade hidden and he said we would go out and get it.

It was about 8 or 9 o'clock at night. We left Don Freeman's car, in which we were riding, at the swimming pool and walked out to the place. We went into the barn to get the box. The hole was just deep enough for the box to slip in. We lifted it out. It must have weighed about 150 pounds. We went out the back door with it. We went down the trail with it. Along the trail we buried the box in pine needles. We went down to get the car and returned in about half an hour to get the box.

We took it up to the airport and opened it. We pried it open with screw drivers. We saw four quart jars and a 2-pound coffee can of retorted gold in balls, all sizes and some loose gold. We found some shares of stock but we didn't pay any attention to them. We saw a pink slip to Jim's car.

We then decided to get Don Freeman, who was working night shift at the Empire mine. We waited until he came off shift. He knew before we were going to get the gold.

SHERIFF DENIES THREAT TO BOYS WHO STOLE GOLD

Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen shown a copy of the deposition made by Ernest Kistle and Raymond Yarborough this morning said:

"When the boys state that I tald them I would put them over the road if they squealed on Jim Kistle, they lied. What I did tell them was: "Stay away from Jim Kistle and his property. You may get hurt if you don't".

"If you boys have any honor at all between you, you will try get Jim Kistle's stocks and securities back to him.

"I held the boys in jail while I investigated their story. There is not a sheriff in California who would not, and does not, do the same thing. When Jim Kistle declared he would not sign a compaint against them, I turned them loose.

"I had Jim Kistle turn in his star because I didn't want a deputy of mine mixed up in any altercation among the Yarboroughs, his brother and others that might be concerned."

"The boys told me five different stories. I doubt if swearing to one story makes much difference to them."

That's why he let us have the car. We just told him we had the gold. He got in the car and we took Ernie home. I, Yarborough, went back to Grass Valley, with Freeman and we went to Freeman's garage. We put the box behind some fruit car boxes.

The next day, I, Raymond Yarborough, and Don went to Auburn to sell some of the gold. We got something like $124. Freeman sold the gold. We don't know what name he gave.

He took $10 and gave us about $113. He took us to Sacramento and I, Raymond, bought a 1935 Ford car. I paid $105 down. We came back to Nevada City. The next day we went to my brother's funeral. Then Freeman said he was going down to San Francisco to see if he could sell some more. If he couldn't he was going to come back up. We promised to give him ten per cent of all the gold he sold. He came back from San Francisco and told us he couldn't sell any down there.

Me, Raymond, and Don went to Reno and stayed a few days. He sold, I think, $590 worth up there.

Don gave me, Raymond, about $25. He kept the rest. We did not tell Ernest anything about it. This was about June 16. Freeman quit his job at the Empire when he began selling the gold. We came back to Nevada City. Freeman said he was going to stay here and sell it all and get his cut out of it and leave.

About the second day after Freeman and Yarborough came back from Reno, I, Ernest, and Don went to Auburn. He sold about $165 for me. We didn't tell Ray anything this.

Freeman left about the 20th of June. He gave me,Raymond, around $550. It was in twenties, tens and fives. He didn't say anything about leaving. He gave me the money by my house. He said he would see me later in the day but he never showed up. The same day we went to Reno looking for him. We came back home the some night. Coming back we hit a doe deer near the Omega mine.

It wrecked the car but it would run so we drove it into Nevada City and had it fixed up a little. Then we took it into Sacramento and it took about two weeks to get it fixed. We hitch-hiked back up to Nevada City. I, Raymond, hid my money in the attic at my home. I, Ernest, stayed at

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder when the summer sun
Beams brightly down upon the land,
And all the wayside grass is dry
And tawny as the desert sand,
If those who wander far away,
In lush, green realms beyond the foam,
Still follow in their wistful dreams
The warm, brown trails of home.

I wonder in what state other than his own and at what season of the year, a genuine Californian could spend even a short vacation without experiencing homesick longings for miracles of beauty and delight unfolding at home.

Of course summer is vacation time, but where can one find recreation grounds comparable to our own? Here are magic shores, snow capped mountains, sunlit valleys and the wooded hills, big trees, desert sands, lakes, rivers and streams; the vacationist has only to make up his mind and take his choice.

Autumn comes with hazy skies, blue and golden mists swinging above the canyons, State Fair calling for attention and candid candidates in full cry.

Winter is the season of clouds and showers, green grass mantles hills and valleys, sturdy flowers burst into bloom and spring comes stealing to us through a blur of rain.

Spring time? I know a story; once upon a time a California girl went east with the intention of spending three months with relatives in New York City. It was the month of March and the big town was blanketed with snow but many functions had been planned for the visitor's pleasure, and time should have passed rapidly.

One day, about a week after her arrival, she was missed from the jolly group gathered about an open fire in one of the big, handsome rooms, searchers found her in her own room —hurriedly packing a trunk. In answers to amazed inquiries she answered wearily, "it's snowing."

"Of course it is," they told her, "it's very lovely—come to the window and see how very large the flakes are."

"In California," she cried, "the plum orchards are in bloom, the whole Santa Clara valley is a sea of blossoming trees; I can smell the fragrance right now; japonicas are in blooom too, red bud and dogwood are blooming in the canyons; please help me pack up, I'll miss blossom time if I don't hurry."

I wonder if there is a Californian at home, abroad or anywhere who cannot understand the impulses of this homesick girl.

It's mid vacation season now; shores and mountains are thronged with pleasure seekers from far and near. They cannot harm the sandy beaches, but the forests are at their mercy. Let us remind them to observe the rules of camp and trail.—Leave no fires upguarded, extinguish matches and cigarettes before tossing them aside, protect and preserve by every means at their command, the wonder and beauty which endears California not only to her loyal sons and daughters, but to the visitor as well.

Uncle Silas says: "I do not intend to interfere with county elections, but remember, my friends, that experience is what it takes to make a successful town crier."

Bloomfield, Once called "Humbug"

H. M. L. Jr.

A drunken Irishman in a Nevada City saloon was unknowingly one of the first promoters of the town on the ridge between the South and the Middle forks of the Yuba river, first known as "Humbug" and later called North Bloomfield. It was in 1851 that this Irishman came from the ridge with quite a little gold dust to buy supplies in Nevada City. He became somewhat garrulous as the whiskey saturation gradually enveloped him to the teeth and as people will when the alcohol content becomes a dominant influence in bodily metabolism, he began to boast in a florid manner of his prowess in his chosen occupation, which was prospecting.

He painted a gilded picture of the area from whence he had just come with his pockets full of dust, but throughout all his tall talk, and the persuasive questioning that he naturally drew from his barroom audience, he was shrewd enough not to reveal the location of this rich find. When he left for his diggings, still plenty high, he didn't observe that he was followed by quite a cavalcade, who arrived at his place of prospecting shortly after he did. These hopefuls prospected the whole area rather thoroughly and were disgusted to find nothing at all of rich gravel. For some time following the disappointment of the Irishman's listeners, the place was called "Humbug." There is still a "Humbug creek" that recalls to old timers' minds the wild stories of the Irishman of high grade gravel.

North Bloomfield has never been blessed or cursed with the heavy finds of the sparkling yellow metal that have transferred towns like Nevada City and North San Juan into feverish scrambles of gold-mad men. The yield of the hydraulic mines of the Bloomfield district was in the past steady, but of low-grade gravel that necessitated hydraulicing on a large scale such as that formerly pursued at the giant Malakoff diggings just outside of Bloomfield. The first promoters of the Malakoff property, two brothers named Robinson were also the first plaintiffs in anti-hylraulic suits. In about 1882, they relinquished their interest in the Malakoff and began ranching in the Sacramento valley. Hydraulicking by a company north of Bloomfield was affecting their irrigation supply and they filed an injunction against that company, which was enforced and prevented further work by that one company. About 1883 an association of valley farmers with headquarters in Marysville was formed under the name Anti-Debris Association. It was founded by a small group of farmers, indignant that their grain should be ruined by muddy over flowing waters from rivers choked with hydraulic debris, and soon grew to a very powerful organization.

After two or three years of litigation, during which the hydraulic miners appealed the case to the Federal court, the miners were ordered to cease operating monitors, and the U. S. Marshall was directed to enforce the order. The Anti-Debris Association, determined that the injunction should not be ignored, sent spies from their headquarters in Marysville to make sure that the monitors were not working and be prepared to report any infringement of the injunction to the marshall. It was in this period shortly after the final legal validification of the anti-hydraulic injunction that some of the large hydraulic companies near Bloomfield resorted to what was called "moon-shining". Officials of the company would fraternize with the anti-hydraulic association spies in the evening and would pollute them with demon rum in the local saloons until the spy's value as an observer underwent a serious degeneration. Then they would rush out to the diggings and tell the boys to turn on the monitors. Frequently, or more precisely, usually, strangers on the road to Bloomfield at this period were disturbed by the muffled roar of the monitors mingling with the beautiful night calls of mountain birds. If occasionally the Marysville group of farmers sent up a spy who did not care to let rum jostle with crystal clear reason in regulating his activities, some of the hydraulic men would call upon him in the Anti-Debris office, pass the time of day casually with him and departing drop an envelope containing a century or a half century and a little note on the theme of the three proverbial monkeys who are so clever about keeping out of trouble. Since the Anti-Debris association evidently did not provide men of outstanding sterling quality, the hydraulicers were able to labor on for some years at this moonshining.

In 1907, Antone Caminetti, a brilliant California statesman, succeeded in getting through the legislature a law permitting the use of hydraulic methods providing the companies engaged in this work built satisfactory debris dams. These dams, if properly constructed would have cost the companies more than they could have paid and still work for a profit, for almost all of them operated low grade gravel on a very narrow margin. The companies built unsatisfactory dams and continued operating for a short time longer, until popular resentment and government authority finaly closed them down for good—or almost for good, for now the Yuba Narrows Dam project brings hope of new life to all the ridge.

Bloomfield has the charm that is common to many of the old mining towns of this region. Old Lombardy poplars, picket fences, attractive frame buildings, and deserted balconied hotels framed by large locust trees, an occasional cool and spacious garden, and gnarled fruit trees characteristic of these forgotten hamlets give grace to Bloomfield. At the far end of the town, on the property of the Cummins brothers, is one of the most heartening things I have seen in my excursions to the near by ghost towns. It is a young orchard, three or four years old. Everywhere in the faded towns of the ridge, one sees irregular rows of gnarled and dying fruit tres. The appearance of this admirable orchard is like the entrance of pink-cheeked child into a room of old people. It is a happy note that expresses the whole hope of the ridge for regeneration.

The Cummins brothers, excellent citizens who have been born and raised in Bloomfield have adjoining their backyard one of the best natural swimming pools this writer has ever seen. It is on the location of the old Blair diggings, long idle, and covers about an acre in a shady green pool that is a beautiful example of the symbolic "old swimming hole." It is no wonder that the Cummins brothers, after being away from Bloomfield, are always glad to get back. Though they hope the Yuba Narrows project will bring prosperity to the town, they never expect it to attain the size that made it one of the largest centers on the booming ridge. At one time Bloomfield had a population of over a thousand. There were many stores, stores of such quality that people rarely left the town for the purpose of shopping. Now, of course, with the automobiles it is easy to get out and buy wherever one pleases.

At the height of Ridge prosperity, Bloomfield was rendered very colorful by a Chinatown of about two hundred. Every other business place in this Chinatown was a gambling den, and every other place was a dope parlor. They had a joss house, too, and on Oriental holidays it was crowded with the yellow men in black pajamas. At this time, Bloomfield even boasted what amounted to a suburb, an outlying community called Lake City, after the Lake Mining Company, which was a center and stopping place for the big six-horse freighters, carrying supplies from Nevada City into the mountains. A good deal of grain and hay was grown here for the stable trade. There were many pleasant houses and gardens. Now all that is left is a big pile of old wagons, a tattered old hotel building, and a single house. There is no hope of the future for this old stage and freight station. To quote old Mr. Howlett: "When the automobile came, it knocked everything for Lake City."

Constitution Day Message

The nation pauses to observe Constitution day September 17, symbolized by Howard Chandler Christy's famous painting reproduced above. The painting shows George Washington addressing the Constitutional convention in Philadelphia, while at the top are figures symbolizing phrases of the preamble to the Constitution and elements in the 151 years of progress under that document.

YOU BET MINING COMPANY

Fletcher Hamilton, prominent mining man, is in charge of operations on the old Red Dog property now under management of the You Bet Mining company. Work started a week ago and nine men are employed doing development work. All gravel mined is sluiced for gold recovery. The men are employed in three shifts. The big channel encountered in this district produced millions in early days, and the two ghost towns of Red Dog and You Bet, of several hundred people each, sprang up in a short time to disappear when the law prohibiting hydraulic mining was enforced a number of years ago. Red Dog had five hotels, a dozen stores and saloons and three or four hundred residents. Great monitors have washed away the site of You Bet, the diggings yielded much gold, petrified wood and other fossils. Jim Brady is in charge of operations at the You Bet mine.

MT. VERNON PROPERTY

Foundations are being laid for installation of a 50 ton ball mill and small recovery plant at the Mt. Vernon or Kirkham property north of Nevada City. Thomas Brown is in charge of the property which is being worked on a cooperative basis.

PLATFORM

of DANIEL L. HIRSCH, M. D.
Candidate for Office of
CORONER OF NEVADA COUNTY

The Chief Purpose of the Coroner's Office is to determine the Cause of Death. A Physician and Surgeon trained in his profession, co-operating with the Sheriff, is better qualified to hold an inquest, make examinations, and determine that cause.

The Office of Coroner should be taken out of the hands of an undertaker whose chief interest is burial, and whose business deals with the disposition of the dead. When an autopsy is required by a lay coroner, he must call in a physician, who is the only one permitted by law to make post-mortem examinations.

There is no amublance chasing for burials when a doctor is coroner, as he is a neutral party in the disposition of the remains. This important matter is up to the nearest relative, who should be given perfect freedom to choose the mortician.

It will be my policy, as a Member of our County Medical Society to practice perfect justice in cooperation with my professional colleagues concerning autopsies and cases. It is my desire to serve this County, Efficiently, Faithfully, and Economically. Books, reports, and expenses will ever be open for public inspection.

With Justice and Service to all I pledge myself to carry out this program if elected.

When some fine morning you awaken all tied up in a knot and your feet seem to be where your collar was the night before—just reach up, with the ease of Ginger O'Dare and calmly unlock that extremity which is giving you the jitters.

As that dainty underfooting comes to earth, please refrain from uttering the customary groans. Smile, make life seem a lark—or was it a lark that got you into the mess to start with?

Now! If you will touch your lowered knee with your head, I am told, the exercise will limber up your whole disposition and more clearly locate those cerebral rattles you can most earnestly dispense with.

While thus being in a very confident mood and before your courage deserts you, hastily grab the remaining instep—a tug or two, a few inaudible words and—presto!—you have become untangled from a very awkward predicament.

home all the time.

It was about June 29, I, Raymond, went down to Sacramento after the car. I came back up here and Ernest and I decided to go up to Susanville. We went into Reno for the third and fourth celebration. I, Raymond, fooled all my money, about $500, off. I had a girl with us for a while. We took her back to Colfax, where she lived.

On Saturday night we headed back toward Nevada City from Susanville. On the road to Reno we saw Tom Kistle and we stopped. He said "You guys want to follow us right back to Nevada City. And dont' dare to pass." His girl was with him, Frances somebody.

We followed him as far as Truckee. We ditched Tom and took the road to Lake Tahoe with two girl hitch-hikers. We left them off at Lake Tahoe and we turned around and came back to Truckee. Then we came on down the road to Colfax and turned off to Grass Valley and Nevada City. We arrived in Nevada City about mid-night and we went to the Yarborough house We had just parked when Jim came along. He said: "Come with me." We went with him to the Nevada County jail. Tobiassen, the sheriff, Tom, Johnny Muscardini, Fred Harris from Reno, was there.

They started to question us about the box. They asked us all kinds of questions. They asked us if we sold the gold, and I, Ernest, said "no, Don Freeman did." "God damn you," Jim told us, "you gypped me out of between $7,000 and $10,000." Jim asked us how much gold was left and we told them we didn't know how much was left. They asked us where the stocks went to and I, Ernest, told them I didn't know or maybe Don Freeman had them. They asked us what we done with the box. We told them we dumped the box in the Yuba river, on the way to San Juan, before Don left. He told us to get rid of it.

It was quarter after two they took us and locked us up. We were in jail four days, until Wednesday afteernoon, July 13. Monday, Johnny Muscardini and Jim came after us and told us we were going to get the box. They took us to Johnny's home to get bathing suits. While Johnny was getting the bathing suit I, Ernest, said something about highgraders and Jim hit on top of the head. He said if I talked any more he was going to take the club to me.

We went out to the Yuba river. We showed them where we dumped the box but Johnny said the river was too muddy to dive after the box. They took us back to jail. When we got back they told the fellows in the office they couldn't find the box, the water was too muddy.

I guess it was the next day they questioned us again. They asked Ray if they left him out would he go find Don and he said "Yes."

I, Ernest, had $153 left. I told Jim where I hid it in the car. He couldn't find it so he came after me to find if and so I went to the car with him and found it.

Wednesday afternoon they let us out. "We are going to let you guys go this time but if you squeal on Jim we are going to bring you back and send you over the road," Tobiassen said. Then they booked us.

Tobiassen told me, Ernest, to keep away from Jim and his property or Jim would shoot me the first chance he got.

Jim and my dad, have been operating a stamp mill, two stamps for about three years.

Men came all hours of the day and night to sell Jim gold. He used to have a license but I don't think he has one any more. Most of the gold he buys off miners.

CITY IS IMPROVING SPRING STREET

Street Superintendent Herbert H. Hallett has a crew with equipment resurfacing Spring street from Bridge to the Downieville highway in Nevada City.
